Helsinki Study of Religions
A Reader

Helsinki Study of Religions: A Reader brings together a selection of articles written by scholars who have been active researching and teaching the Study of Religions at the University of Helsinki during recent years and, in some cases, even over several decades.

The writers are in various ways affiliated to the discipline and represent scholars in different career phases: professors and other permanent faculty members, project researchers and doctors who have defended their dissertations in Helsinki. The selection succeeds in exemplifying the variety of topics addressed and approaches pursued in the Study of Religions at the University of Helsinki. The introduction provides an historical and institutional framework and background to the discipline in Helsinki.
